Abstracts

In October 2022, the Canadian government removed all remaining COVID-19 related travel restrictions. This led to strong growth of inbound and outbound travel, with this trend continuing into 2023. Household savings are high thanks to severely reduced spending during the pandemic as activities such as travel and out-of-home entertainment were restricted. Consumers are now ready and willing to shift their spending from purchasing products to purchasing experiences, with travel high on the list.
