Abstracts

The total number of arrivals maintained a two-digit growth since year 2009 but fell flat in 2013 due to the sharp decline of Japanese travellers into South Korea. Japanese inbound market accounted for the top position until 2012, when it held a 34% share of the total trips. That share fell to 25% in 2013, whereas the number of trips from China saw record-high growth of 45% in 2013. As a result, China became the largest inbound market for South Korea in 2013 in place of the existing top country...
