Abstracts

Western Europe excluding Turkey was one of largest markets in the world for licensed toy sales in 2017, but also saw among the strongest drops in sales in the year, declining by 1% overall. The declines come as various countries within the region have started to see sharply lower toy sales and major global brands begin to see consumer interest wane. While the market will continue to see headwinds in the years to come, certain areas will see growth among young children and adults.

Euromonitor International's Traditional Toys and Games Licensing in Western Europe global briefing offers a comprehensive guide to the Toys and Games market at an international level. It looks at both global and regional level performances as well as providing category and channel analysis.
