Abstracts

The strong economic recovery of the UAE following the economic downturn of 2009 continues to be the key factor driving the level of growth witnessed within transportation in 2013. Additionally, prior to the 2009 downturn, the country has just seen the completion and inauguration of a number of major transport facilities as part of the government's long-term plan to diversify the country's economy away from oil through tourism. These facilities, such as the new Dubai airport are now being taken...
