Abstracts

Hotels in Norway continued to see stable growth in current value sales with 2% in 2013. This growth was slightly higher than in 2012. The main reason for this is that there was an increase in tourists from most key markets. Average daily rates in Norwegian hotels have remained competitive, due to improved efficiency within better management practices. However, price levels of Norwegian hotels remain a challenge although a weakening of the Norwegian krone has improved the situation somewhat.
