Abstracts

Retail value sales through vending in New Zealand remained low in 2022, with growth potential limited by decline in impulse purchases. With local consumers spending more time at home due to COVID-19 restrictions, vending machines, which primarily target impulse purchases in shopping centres, attraction venues and city centres, had fewer purchasing occasions. With 2023 being the first year since 2019 with no COVID-19-related restrictions, there was a slight increase in retail current value sales,...
