Abstracts

After the significant surge in sales witnessed in Brazil during the COVID-19 pandemic, vitamins is expected to see more modest rates of volume and current value growth in 2023, although they will exceed the 2022 levels. The favourable performance in current value terms will primarily be fuelled by multivitamins. Notably, there has been a shift in consumer preference from lower-priced single vitamins such as vitamin C and D, towards products that promise a more comprehensive approach to enhancing...
