Abstracts

Given the persistent inflationary pressures experienced in the country, it is not surprising that the vitamins category has also seen significant price increases. According to official sources, vitamins experienced a rise of 6.9% in 2022, which is almost a full percentage point under the official inflation rate of 7.8% in 2022. However, B complex saw a much higher increase of around 14.3%, according to official publications. Although market conditions are expected to normalise by 2024, the first...
