Abstracts

Retail current value sales of watches declined by almost a quarter during 2020, and while they will begin to expand again in 2021, this rebound will be very modest. World famous for its watches, demand for these products was particularly hard hit by a sharp decline in inbound international tourism during 2020, with 2021 only likely to see a partial recovery in this figure. In particular, inbound tourism from outside of Europe is likely to remain muted during the year.
