Abstracts

Wearable electronics is seeing small positive volume sales in 2023. 2022 was a hard year for almost all consumer electronic categories in China, as the government's tightened pandemic control measures, thus limiting economic activities. Wearable electronics was no exception, registering a small double-digit decline in overall volume sales. Among the subcategories, smart wearables performed comparably well, with a small decline in volumes sold, and is also expected to rebound significantly. In co...
