Abstracts

Amongst the major concerns of Colombians are health issues associated with being overweight or obese. Awareness of such issues has been raised by government efforts, which have included issuing an obesity law in 2009 that promotes healthier eating habits and physical activity, and more recently, the black seals law that is intended to generate awareness about the nutritional content of packaged products. According to the Ministry of Health, in 2022, 56.4% of Colombians were overweight. Neverthel...
