Abstracts

Weight management and wellbeing has a very strong foundation to maintain its current consumer base and expand upon it as around 35% of children and 65% of adults are either overweight or obese in Croatia. For the last decade, Croatians have developed poor eating habits and continue to pour to cities leaving villages, which are more labour intensive. The health and fitness culture is on the rise in the country; however, it is mostly popular amongst more educated and higher income Croatians.
