Abstracts

Weight management and wellbeing in Norway is a category in which demand is slowly but steadily falling as few of the products in the category conform to current trends in slimming and health and wellbeing generally. Similar to other consumer health categories, the COVID-19 pandemic provided a temporary boost to sales in weight management and wellbeing during 2020 and, to some extent, 2021 as well. Indeed, the category registered positive volume growth for the first time in several years and 2020...
