Abstracts

While the overall outlook remains grim (and may yet deteriorate further), Western European consumers are at the forefront of a sea-change in global dining. Fast food chains, in particular, have taken share by staking out a premium, yet affordable position, one with a heavy dine-in component, a story set to be repeated again and again across developed markets. In this new report, Euromonitor International looks for glints of light amidst the gloom.

Euromonitor International's Western European Foodservice: A glimpse at the future for global operators global briefing offers an insight into to the size and shape of the Consumer Foodservice market, highlights buzz topics, emerging geographies, categories and trends as well as pressing industry issues and white spaces. It identifies the leading operators and brands, offers strategic analysis of key factors influencing the operating environment - be they economic/lifestyle influences, new foodservice concepts, outlet locations, menu innovation or format development. The entire industry is considered, including both chained and independent operators. Forecasts illustrate how the market is set to change and what is the criteria for success.
