Abstracts

Wound care continued to see positive growth in retail volume terms in 2023, as life returned to normal following the pandemic. With people spending more time outside the home, including taking part in sport, this led to an increase in the number of cuts, grazes and minor injuries, which encouraged consumers to stock up on sticking plasters/adhesive bandages, and other products. Moreover, domestic and international travel also increased, pushing up the need for first aid kits. Overall, sticking p...
