Abstracts

In Singapore, fluctuating community COVID-19 cases in 2020 and 2021 caused residents to become more reluctant to spend time outdoors. While there was a consistent interest in fitness for health improvement, many individuals formed the habit of exercising at home to minimise their exposure to the virus. This contributed to a strong decline for wound care in 2020. Although sales returned to growth in 2021, this was minimal. However, as of April 2022, all restrictions on group size and outdoor acti...
