Product Overview

Lead Carbon Battery is an Ultra Battery, a hybrid device that incorporates ultra-capacitor technology with lead-acid battery technology in a single cell with a typical electrolyte. Lead carbon batteries add high-capacity or highly conductive carbon content to the negative electrode, combine the advantages of lead-acid batteries and supercapacitors, lead-carbon batteries provide not only high energy density but also high strength, fast charge, and discharge, longer life cycle. As a result, the benefits of lead-carbon are lower sulfation in the case of partial state-of-charge operation, lower load voltage, and thus higher performance and lower corrosion of the positive plate, and the overall result is an improved life cycle.
