Product Overview

Retail food is any food that is bought by customers and ingested off-premises, except restaurant meals. Food sold in stores comes in all shapes and sizes, and it is regulated by a number of government agencies. Boxes, cans, cellophane packaging, and cylindrical cardboard containers will all be used to pack retail foods. Some grocery products, such as fresh produce, are not individually wrapped. Retail food has a strong demand elasticity, which means that irrespective of the state of the economy, there will still be a demand for it.

Market Highlights

Global Food and Grocery Retail Market is expected to project a notable CAGR of 5.3% in 2030.

Global Food and Grocery Retail Market to surpass USD XXXX million by 2030 from USD XXXX million in 2020 at a CAGR of 5.3% in the coming years, i.e., 2021-30. The world's market has been driven by increased disposable income, accessibility, and rapid urbanization. The demand for high-quality consumables and food retail in emerging countries has increased by the growing middle-income group of consumers. In addition, the delivery of home products from most supermarkets has become an appealing prospect for time-consumers.

Global Food and Grocery Retail Market: Segments

Supermarkets & Hypermarkets segment to grow with the highest CAGR during 2020-30

Global Food and Grocery Retail Market is segmented by Distribution channel into Supermarkets & Hypermarkets, Convenience Store, and Online. During the projected timeline, Supermarkets & Hypermarkets is expected to have the highest market share. Most individuals seek to choose things by hand. Consumers are better placed to choose their own food products, in particular fresh products. Consumers usually have very particular fruit and vegetable preferences. For instance, they prefer fresh and ripe products. Other elements that drive this channel of distribution entail price discounts, shopping experience, immediate food products purchase, and the accessibility in a single store of a huge range of goods. In addition, the sales of products for food through this channel were stimulated by improved services such as click and collect.

Packaged food segment to grow with the highest CAGR during 2020-30

Global Food and Grocery Retail Market is divided by product type into Packaged Food, Unpackaged Food, Drinks, Tobacco and Household Products. The growth of the packaging food segment has been fueling high consumption of the packaged foodstuff, such as bread, butter, cheese, desserts, frozen foods, edible oil, meat, snacks, and yogurt. Consumers' demand for these food products has been driven by factors, such as easy food preparation and consumption, simple operation, and better protection against external damage. In addition, the hectic life encourages consumers to choose suitable food and other food. Furthermore, because of the growing workforce, packaged food products are becoming more popular in the coming few years. In recent years there has been considerable growth worldwide in demand for ready-to-eat, ready-to-cook, and baked goods, due to this the growth of the packaged food segment has been accelerated.

Global Food and Grocery Retail Market Dynamics

Drivers

Rising disposable income

The world's market has been driven by increased disposable income, accessibility, and rapid urbanization. The demand for high-quality consumables and food retail in emerging countries has increased by the growing middle-income group of consumers. In addition, the delivery of home products from most supermarkets has become an appealing prospect for time-consumers.

Development in the online retail market

As online shopping platforms become increasingly used, many players in the industry become involved in electronic products and improve their presence. Walmart, for example, broadened its online distribution platform and began delivery in 2019 on the same day. Correspondingly, Kroger Co has expanded its online pickup locations.

Restraint

Improper infrastructure

Short life of food products restricts the market growth during the forecasted period. The life of such products is short and that leads to spoilage of unsold food items. Moreover, improper infrastructure such as improper road and railways connectivity leads to delay of in-transit time period. All these factors tend to restrict the market growth during the forecasted period.
