Restrain

High costs associated with maintaining physical stores

The price of the Golf Gloves, a low preference of Golf Gloves among professional players as they prefer the feeling of their hands directly on the golf club, is some of the key factors hindering the global Golf Gloves industry. Compared to the advertised Golf Gloves, the existence of clone versions of the Golf Gloves on the market that are comparatively cheaper poses as a restraint to the actual manufacturers, thus hindering the global market for golf gloves. The recent economic crisis had a detrimental effect on sales of Golf Gloves worldwide. Currency fluctuations and less brand outlets in emerging regions could be demand limiting variables. In the Golf Gloves sector, raw materials also play a critical role and their prices have risen dramatically in the past few years.
