Product overview

Self-adhesive labels are a specialized type of label that is applied to packaging which displays the necessary details about the product. They are also called pressure-sensitive labels as they adhere to the surface when pressure is applied. These labels are normally used to fix packaging and also for decorating them. These names are multifaceted frameworks that contain data imprinted on the surface. Several packaging applications use self-adhesive labels for brand awareness. Important contents such as barcode track and trace coding; product description and authentication coding are shown using self-adhesive labels. These are printed using a laser printer and inkjet printer photocopiers.
