Market access for orphan drugs: Can your company break through in emerging markets?

Find out which emerging markets offer the best investment prospects for orphan drug manufacturers.

Based on interviews with eight senior executives and two specialist market access consultants, the report explores more than 35 emerging markets, and gives you a ranked list of the 15 most promising targets.

You'll understand emerging markets' unique dynamics, hear about local stakeholders who help shape the market, and learn how to build the critical mass your product needs to win broad reimbursement at a fair price.

Actionable information for orphan drug manufacturers

Understand emerging markets: Breakdowns of the strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, and threats (SWOT analysis) paint a clear picture of the market access climate four major regions.

Learn the facts on the ground: Charts and tables show you at-a-glance the unique market access barriers and opportunities you're likely to encounter in 35 emerging markets.

Pinpoint the best opportunities: A ranked list of the 15 most promising emerging markets shows you which countries offer the pricing and reimbursement climates for manufacturers.

Get expert insight: Benefit from the verbatim comments of orphan-drugs experts, including top industry executives and experienced advisors with hands-on experience in emerging markets.

Find out what works: Get in-depth analysis of successful real-world strategies, including special access pathways for orphan drugs (pre-registration coverage, named patient programmes, etc.).

Answering Key Questions

Unfamiliar territory: The systems and standards that determine access for orphan drugs in advanced markets don't apply in emerging markets. So what exactly are the ground rules?

Learn the local laws: Every emerging market has a different legal framework for orphan drugs. Find out how to navigate this ever-changing environment successfully.

Take a hands-on approach: In emerging markets, market-shaping may extend to helping locals close gaps in the health system. What kind of support should you be prepared to offer?

Don't overstep: How do you ensure that your market-shaping activities align with local regulations, compliance protocols, and resource constraints?

Education is key: How does helping patients, payers and physicians understand rare disease treatment influence the conversation around market access?

Know who your friends are: Most emerging markets have friendly non-payer stakeholders with an interest in helping you broaden access to orphan drugs. Who are your most likely allies?
