Abstracts

Cerebrospinal fluid, also called CSF, is made by tissue called the choroid plexus in the ventricles (hollow spaces) in the brain. It flows in and around the brain and spinal cord to help cushion them from injury and provide nutrients. The loss of CSF causes the previously cushioned brain to sag inside the skull, which results in a headache. Loss of fluid also causes a lowering of pressure within the skull, a condition called intracranial hypotension. According to market research study published by Gen Consulting Company, the global cerebrospinal fluid management market stood at around USD 1,442 million in 2021 and is projected to rise to a worth of USD 2,140 million by 2028 end, thereby garnering a CAGR of 5.8% during 2022-2028.
