Abstracts

According to the latest research, the global fatty acid ester market is poised to grow by 0.5 million tons during 2023-2029, progressing at a CAGR of 4.31% during the forecast period. Fatty acid esters are formed through a process called esterification, in which a fatty acid molecule reacts with an alcohol molecule, resulting in the formation of an ester bond. The resulting fatty acid ester has different properties than the original fatty acid or alcohol, and can be used for a variety of purposes. In the food industry, fatty acid esters are used as emulsifiers to help mix oil and water-based ingredients together. They are also used as stabilizers to prevent spoilage and extend the shelf life of products. In the cosmetic industry, fatty acid esters are used as emollients and skin conditioning agents in lotions, creams, and other personal care products. In the pharmaceutical industry, they are used as excipients in drug formulations to improve the solubility and absorption of drugs.
