Abstracts

A fire hose and nozzle are essential components of firefighting equipment used to deliver water or other fire suppressants to extinguish fires. The fire hose is typically made of durable, high-pressure-resistant materials such as synthetic or natural rubber, and is designed to withstand the high pressures required to deliver water over long distances. The nozzle is attached to the end of the fire hose and controls the flow and direction of the water. It typically has multiple settings, allowing firefighters to adjust the water flow and spray pattern to match the specific needs of the fire. The nozzle may also include features such as fog settings, which can help to disperse water more efficiently over a wide area. The global fire hose and nozzle market is anticipated to increase by USD 345.0 million till 2029 at an average annual growth of 6.5 percent as per the latest market estimates.
