Abstracts

A rigid box is a type of packaging box that is primarily used for high-end or luxury products such as jewelry, watches, cosmetics, and electronics. It is designed to be sturdy and rigid, providing protection and premium presentation value to the enclosed product. Rigid boxes are made from thick and durable materials such as paperboard, fiberboard, or cardboard. They are typically covered with high-quality paper, fabric, or leather that is embossed, debossed, or foil stamped to create an eye-catching and elegant appearance. The interior of the box is lined with foam or other padding material to offer extra protection to the enclosed product.
