Abstracts

Trade surveillance systems are used by financial institutions and regulatory bodies to monitor trading activity and identify potential instances of illegal, unethical, or risky practices. These systems use sophisticated algorithms and machine learning techniques to analyze large amounts of trading data in real-time, detect patterns and anomalies, and provide alerts when irregularities are identified. Trade surveillance systems help financial institutions and regulatory bodies to comply with regulatory requirements such as the Market Abuse Regulation (MAR) and to prevent insider trading, manipulation, and other abusive practices in financial markets. The analysis predicts the global trade surveillance systems market will grow from USD 971.0 million in 2022 to USD 2,191.2 million by 2029, achieving a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 12.33 percent.
