According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Automotive UBI (Usage-based Insurance) market size was valued at US$ 2620 million in 2023 and is forecast to a readjusted size of USD 8436 million by 2030 with a CAGR of 17.9% during review period.

Automotive Usage-Based Insurance (UBI) is an innovative insurance model that calculates premiums based on a driver's actual behavior and usage patterns rather than relying solely on traditional factors like demographics or vehicle type. By leveraging telematics technology, UBI programs monitor metrics such as driving distance, speed, acceleration, braking, and time of day to assess risk and personalize insurance rates. This approach benefits safe drivers with lower premiums while encouraging responsible driving habits. UBI is often delivered through devices like onboard diagnostics (OBD) dongles, mobile apps, or factory-installed vehicle telematics systems. The model has gained popularity due to advancements in connected car technology, increased consumer demand for fairer pricing, and the insurance industry's push for data-driven risk management.

The automotive Usage-Based Insurance (UBI) market is experiencing significant growth, driven by advancements in telematics, increasing consumer demand for personalized insurance plans, and the global push toward connected vehicle ecosystems. UBI offers insurers a data-driven approach to assess risk more accurately, resulting in fairer premiums for customers and incentives for safer driving behavior. Key factors fueling market expansion include rising adoption of telematics devices, the proliferation of smartphones, and regulatory frameworks supporting data-sharing in the automotive industry. Regions like North America and Europe lead the market due to high penetration of connected cars, while emerging economies in Asia-Pacific are witnessing rapid adoption as insurers tap into growing vehicle ownership and digital infrastructure. Competitive differentiation among UBI providers centers on technology integration, customer experience, and value-added services like real-time driving feedback and rewards programs, positioning the market as a critical component of the future insurance landscape.
