Manual data processing is prone to letting information slip through the cracks, thus harming your business. Incorrect reporting, unaccounted sales, and difficult bookkeeping could ensue. Many businesses use POS software to automate everything, from payments to inventory management to avoid such errors.

Unlike on-premise or legacy POS, which stores your data locally on your computer's hard drive, cloud POS software stores all data in an online server that you can access from anywhere, at any time, via the internet, and on any device. More than anything, POS systems are changing and are becoming even more robust. Automated POS can track sales, inventory, and often integrate with other business applications like accounting software, and can even collect customer contact information, track inventory, and generate sales reports. Some even have HR functions.
