Abstracts

Alternative medicine involves the application of traditional methods of medication such as the use of herbs and other mind and body healing techniques that are mostly based on faith and belief. However, most of these techniques have no regulatory approval or clinical evidential backing. Many of the governments and regulatory bodies have put up efforts in finding clinical support for the incorporation of alternative treatments to help improve the market and treatment methods.

According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Alternative And Complementary Medicine market size was valued at USD 100640 million in 2022 and is forecast to a readjusted size of USD 281510 million by 2029 with a CAGR of 15.8% during review period. The influence of COVID-19 and the Russia-Ukraine War were considered while estimating market sizes.

Europe is the source of most revenue generation in the market owing to the extensive use of botanicals in the regions. Botanicals such as dietary supplements witness considerable demand in countries like Germany and France.

On the other hand, Asia Pacific is set to grow at steady pace over the forecast years due to growth of medical tourism, expensive nature of conventional medicine and the fact that the region serves as the origin place for a number of key alternative medical therapies. The Middle East is transforming into a global hub of wellness medical infrastructure to become and is expected to be one of the rapidly growing regions in this market.
