Abstracts

According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Antiandrogen Drugs market size was valued at US$ 8468 million in 2025 and is forecast to a readjusted size of US$ 11676 million by 2032 with a CAGR of 4.7% during review period.

Antiandrogen Drugs are pharmacological agents that directly block or inhibit androgen receptor activity and thereby reduce the biological effects of testosterone, dihydrotestosterone and related androgens in androgen-responsive tissues. This study focuses on direct androgen receptor antagonists used primarily in prostate cancer, covering first-generation agents such as bicalutamide, flutamide and nilutamide and next-generation androgen receptor inhibitors such as enzalutamide, apalutamide and darolutamide. The market is predominantly composed of small-molecule oral solid dosage forms, including tablets, film-coated tablets, capsules and soft capsules, with product specifications differentiated by active ingredient, strength, formulation, dosing schedule and approved disease setting. The therapeutic mechanism centers on preventing androgen-driven receptor signaling and, for newer agents, more comprehensive inhibition of androgen receptor activation, nuclear translocation and downstream transcriptional activity. Antiandrogen Drugs are used across castration-sensitive and castration-resistant prostate cancer settings, often together with medical or surgical androgen-deprivation strategies depending on the specific approved indication.
