Abstracts

Automatic sorting machine is the machinery that according to the preset computer instruction to sorting of goods and delivering the goods to the specified location. Automated Sortation System is similar to conveyors but typically having higher capacity and can divert containers more quickly. Typically used to distribute high volumes of small cartons to a large set of locations, automated sortation systems offer a highly accurate and efficient means of sorting, routing, consolidating, and diverting a wide range of parcel types to unique destinations for the purposes of order selection, processing, packaging, palletizing, storing, and shipping.

Scope of the Report:

This report focuses on the Automated Sortation System in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes the market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application. In such systems, groups of orders are delivered to a recirculating conveyor system where they are sorted into shipping lanes for final preparation and loaded onto waiting trucks. Developing a model of the sorting process, which incorporates the stochastic elements of these systems, to determine the relative merits of two common categories of sorting strategies found in industry: fixed priority schemes and the next available rule. Fixed priority schemes include such popular rules as 'sort the largest (or smallest) orders first'. In systems with little lane blocking, a rule which assigns the next available order to a shipping lane will outperform any fixed priority scheme in terms of sorting time and system throughput while in systems with significant lane blocking, the sorting rule has little impact.

The worldwide market for Automated Sortation System is expected to grow at a CAGR of roughly 6.2% over the next five years, will reach 6520 million US$ in 2023, from 4540 million US$ in 2017, according to a new GIR (Global Info Research) study.
