Abstracts

The global Baby Walker Harness market size is expected to reach $ 237 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 4.2% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

A baby walker harness is a safety device designed to prevent infants from falling or wandering away while using a baby walker. It typically consists of adjustable straps and harnesses that secure the baby snugly in the walker, preventing them from falling out or tipping over. The harness usually attaches to the baby walker itself and wraps around the infant's torso, providing additional support and stability as they move around in the walker. This helps to minimize the risk of accidents and injuries while allowing the baby to explore and develop their motor skills in a controlled environment. Baby walker harnesses are considered an important safety feature for traditional baby walkers, which have raised concerns regarding their potential risks to infant safety and development. In 2025, global Baby Walker Harness production reached approximately 17,000 k units, with an average global market price of around 10 US$/ Unit. The production capacity of Baby Walker Harness reaches 22,000 k units, and the industry's gross profit margin is approximately between 30% and 50%.

The Baby Walker Harness market is driven by increasing parental focus on child safety, mobility support, and early developmental assistance during the toddler stage. As more families live in urban environments with crowded public spaces, parents seek products that help prevent falls, reduce wrist strain from hand-holding, and provide better control in high-traffic areas such as shopping malls, airports, and parks. Rising awareness of ergonomic baby products and early motor-skill development further supports demand, as walking harnesses are positioned as tools that encourage balance and confidence while minimizing injury risk. The growth of dual-income households and active lifestyles has also increased spending on practical child safety accessories. In addition, expansion of e-commerce platforms and social media parenting communities has improved product visibility and cross-border brand reach, while innovations in breathable materials, anti-lost leash designs, and multifunctional backpack-style harnesses continue to stimulate steady market growth.
