A baler knotter is a crucial component of agricultural balers, designed to tie and secure bales of crops such as straw, hay, or forage. The knotter uses mechanical transmission to loop the baling twine or wire around the crops, then utilizes hooks, needles, and other parts to form a knot, ensuring that the bale is tightly secured. Widely used in agricultural operations, this device improves efficiency, reduces labor, and ensures the stability of the crops during transport and storage.
