Bikinis and one-piece swimsuits are two very different styles of swimwear, each meeting different scenarios and aesthetic needs. Bikinis are characterized by a two-piece cut, with a separate top and a high-waist, low-waist or thong-style bottom that highlights the body curve. They are suitable for beach vacations, sunbathing and other leisure scenes, and are mainly sexy, free and personalized. One-piece swimsuits use an integrated design with a larger coverage area. They are commonly seen in sports swimming, diving or conservative occasions. They focus on functionality, have both body shaping and sun protection effects, and are more suitable for water sports or family travel.
