Abstracts

Bioabsorbable Stents Market are defined as medical devices that are implanted into the blood vessels or other internal ducts for the treatment of blocked vessels or arteries. It is typically made up of metal mesh and remains in the body permanently or until removed via surgical intervention. A biodegradable stent on the other hand is made of biological material, which is dissolved or absorbed in the body. These stents eliminate the requirement of surgery to remove stents.

SCOPE OF THE REPORT:

This report focuses on the Bioabsorbable Stents in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes the market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application.

By absorption rate, the global bioresorbable stents market is segmented into slow-absorption stents and fast-absorption stents. In 2017, the slow-absorption stents segment is expected to account for the largest share of the market. The large share of this segment can be attributed to the advantages it offers such as the longer duration of drug release within the artery provided by these stents and the reduced need for stent re-implantation.

The hospitals segment is expected to dominate the market and grow at the highest CAGR of during the forecast period. The high growth in this segment is attributed to increasing need of surgeries, growing risk of CAD and PAD, and improving reimbursement scenario for the hospitals.

In 2018, Europe is expected to dominate the global bioresorbable stents market. Factors such as increasing regulatory approvals for stents which will facilitate their commercialization and rising research activities for development of bioresorbable stents in the region are expected to drive the growth of this regional segment.

The worldwide market for Bioabsorbable Stents is expected to grow at a CAGR of roughly xx% over the next five years, will reach xx million US$ in 2023, from xx million US$ in 2017, according to a new GIR (Global Info Research) study.
