Abstracts

The global Boutique Medicine market size is expected to reach $ million by 2029, rising at a market growth of % CAGR during the forecast period (2023-2029).

Boutique medicine is also called concierge medicine, platinum practice, concierge care, retainer-based medicine, and direct primary care. The boutique medicine concept is appealing to both primary care physicians and their patients. Boutique medicine is a developing business model in the healthcare industry which is mostly focused on making a connection between the healthcare provider and patient. In this business, patients are required to pay their fees on an annual and monthly basis in exchange for which doctors agree to deliver or help to improve care and dedicate themselves to care for only a limited number of patients. Moreover, healthcare insurance companies forced health providers to consult more patients at lower margins. This resulted in an increased volume of patients leading to physician burnout, misdiagnosis, patient dissatisfaction, and restricted access to primary care facilities. This is a major driving factor that helped the growth of the boutique medicine market.

This report studies the global Boutique Medicine demand, key companies, and key regions.
