Abstracts

The global Burdock Root Powder market size is expected to reach $ 95.12 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 6.3% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

The burdock root powder is a brownish-gray fibrous powder made from the dried roots of burdock. Its core components include inulin, phenolic acids, and polyacetylenes. The main function is to promote the proliferation of bifidobacteria through high levels of inulin (water-soluble dietary fiber), thereby improving the intestinal flora and assisting in regulating blood sugar and lipid levels. At the same time, the burdock bitterin is utilized to exert anti-inflammatory and liver-protective effects. It provides a natural source of prebiotics to replace some synthetic oligosaccharides. The upstream is a large-scale planting base, and the downstream flows to solid beverages for intestinal health, herbal substitute tea, high-end pet snacks, and functional fermented food production lines in Japan and South Korea. In 2025, the production of burdock root powder is approximately 20,000 tons, with an average price of about 3,000 US dollars per ton, and a gross profit margin of about 20%. The single-line production capacity is 300 tons per year.
