Abstracts

BPM is primarily used in increasing the efficiency of certain processes operating in a business scenario. The focus on the task-in-hand is properly reiterated and the resources are distributed on the process required. Redistribution of the required amount of resources to processes can be achieved through the implementation of business process management. The implementation of such systems also aids in the standardization of the processes. The existing processes in the company can also be improved instead of devising new and complex processes for the growth of the company, which is always associated with the risk of success and failure leading to wastage of resources. The datasets in the company for many related tasks can also be organized in a better manner to achieve valuable insights into the company's growth.
