Abstracts

Calcium silicate, also known as calcium orthosilicate, is a white powder derived from diatomaceous earth and limestone. It is obtained by reacting calcium oxide and silica in various ratios. Calcium silicate possesses properties such as high physical water absorption and low bulk density. Due to these special physical characteristics calcium silicate has several applications in the construction sector. It is also used as a food additive in the food processing industry.

Scope of the Report:

This report focuses on the Calcium Silicate in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes the market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application. The product is primarily employed as a substitute for asbestos in high-temperature insulation materials. Further, it is employed in the production of coatings, roofing products, and plastics. Rising use of these products in the construction sector is expected to have a positive impact on the industry over the forecast period. Growing roof and floor tile needs on account of increasing new construction and refurbishment work are expected to have a positive impact on the calcium silicate demand over the forecast period. Growth and development of construction and increasing government expenditure on infrastructural development is expected to be a driver for this market over the forecast period. However, raw material price volatility and low raw material availability are expected to challenge growth over the forecast period. Germany in EMEA is witnessing an increasing demand for calcium silicate. The presence of associations such as European association for passive fire protection (EAPFP) for commercial and residential buildings will further boost the need for calcium silicate pipe insulation or calcium silicate based insulation materials. Also, the production rate of calcium silicate board or sheet is also increasing in the region due to the rising focus on integrating fire-resistance in buildings.

The worldwide market for Calcium Silicate is expected to grow at a CAGR of roughly xx% over the next five years, will reach xx million US$ in 2023, from xx million US$ in 2017, according to a new GIR (Global Info Research) study.
