Abstracts

According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Cannabidiol (CBD) Distillate market size was valued at US$ 296 million in 2024 and is forecast to a readjusted size of USD 416 million by 2031 with a CAGR of 5.0% during review period.

In this report, we will assess the current U.S. tariff framework alongside international policy adaptations, analyzing their effects on competitive market structures, regional economic dynamics, and supply chain resilience.

CBD distillate is a highly purified form of cannabidiol that's been refined to remove impurities, specifically THC. That concentrated oil can then be used or combined with a full-spectrum CBD for an even more potent, impactful blend. CBD Distillate is a reduced version of the entire hemp plant with 50%-70% CBD content. This leaves room for the remaining vitamins, terpenes, fatty acids and other cannabinoids meaning it has the same natural balance of chemicals as the Hemp plant itself. In short, both CBD isolate and CBD distillate are processed to have negligible amounts of THC. The difference is that CBD isolate is at least 99% CBD with only trace amounts of other substances (resulting in a notable limitation of biological benefits), while CBD distillate averages 50-70% CBD, coupled with 30-50% more natural cannabinoid compounds which work synergistically to aid and enhance what would otherwise be a restriction on potential health benefits.
