Abstracts

Canned food requires less preparation time and are considered convenient to use, which has led to its popularity in the global market. The demand for sealed and tamper-proof steel container food is high, as they protect food from harmful bacteria. Also, due to hectic and busy lifestyles of consumers, canned food is expected to gain more importance. The process of canning helps in preserving the quality of food products and preventing food spoilage, which subsequently increases their shelf life.

Scope of the Report:

This report focuses on the Canned Food in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes the market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application.

One trend in the market is innovations in packaging. With increase in demand for chemical-free canned foods, manufacturers are focusing on innovations in packaging. Many brands of canned food products have started offering products in BPA-free containers. Some of the companies that offer these include Bionaturae, Crown Prince, Tyson Foods, and Whole Foods.

Europe accounted for more than one-third of the market share during 2015. Key reasons attributed to the growth of canned food in this region are its convenience of use as well as its relatively long shelf life compared to fresh food. Canned foods take less time to prepare and are more convenient to cook. Convenient packaging will further add to the popularity of canned foods. Canned products are more popular in the UK, Ireland, France, and Germany. Also, European consumers prefer for private label products owing to their low price.

The worldwide market for Canned Food is expected to grow at a CAGR of roughly xx% over the next five years, will reach xx million US$ in 2023, from xx million US$ in 2017, according to a new GIR (Global Info Research) study.
