Abstracts

Capillary electrophoresis system is an instrument used in separation of nucleic acids and proteins with high accuracy and within short span of time. Capillary electrophoresis is based on the principle of separation of molecules according to charge and size. The basic difference between capillary electrophoresis and gel electrophoresis is that the molecules are separated inside the small capillary tube which is filled with conductive buffer rather than gel. Separation of molecules using capillary electrophoresis is faster and gives higher resolution as the thin tubes have a higher surface-to-volume ratio, which enables to dissipate heat faster, and thus run at high voltages without overheating. Capillary electrophoresis requires small amount of sample which is advantageous in the analysis of rare and expensive sample.

Scope of the Report:

This report focuses on the Capillary Electrophoresis in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes the market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application.

One trend in market is rise of hyphenated technology. Hyphenation is the combination of one or more functions into a single product. It often requires two individual instruments to be built under a single casing, which can work in tandem with each other. This has resulted in an increased adoption of CE-MS, the combination of the liquid separation process of capillary electrophoresis with mass spectrometry. This combines the advantages to provide high separation efficiency and molecular mass information in a single analysis. It requires a minimal volume, has high resolving power and sensitivity, and can analyze at high speed. It has applications in basic research in proteomics and quantitative analysis of biomolecules, as well as in clinical medicine.

During 2016, geographically Americas led the market with the highest market share and will continue to witness a steady growth for the next four years. This is mainly due to increased spending on the R&D which needs advanced capillary electrophoresis solutions and demand is set to increase with the usage in the wider applications. Increasing adoption of highly advanced capillary electrophoresis techniques by the pharmaceutical and biotechnology industries in countries like the US and Canada will contribute to this market's growth in the region. Moreover, the increased incidence of chronic diseases, requirement for drug discovery, hike in elderly population, and increased demand for personalized medicines will also lead to this industry's growth in the Americas. Also, significant government funding and investments with the rise in the number of collaborations and acquisitions amid companies add to the market's growth in the future.

The worldwide market for Capillary Electrophoresis is expected to grow at a CAGR of roughly xx% over the next five years, will reach xx million US$ in 2023, from xx million US$ in 2017, according to a new GIR (Global Info Research) study.
