Abstracts

Capnography is the monitoring of partial pressure or concentration of carbon dioxide (CO₂) in respiratory gases, and is an integral part of anesthesia and respiratory critical care. Capnography provides information about the CO₂ production, alveolar ventilation, and elimination of CO₂ from anesthesia circuits and also shows respiratory patterns on a monitor. This is a quick and reliable method to detect acute or life-threatening conditions such as ventilator failure, malposition of tracheal tubes, defective breathing circuits, and circulatory failure in both intubated and non-intubated individuals.

Scope of the Report:

This report focuses on the Capnography in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes the market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application. Growth in the prevalence of respiratory diseases, increasing surgeries, and a rise in geriatric population drive the growth of the capnography market. Furthermore, extended utility of capnography in emergency rooms, endoscopic suites, onsite emergency, trauma fields, and X-ray rooms have fuelled the growth of the market. A rise in disposable income and increase in investments in healthcare by governments & private organizations are anticipated to propel the market growth.

During 2015, the Americas dominated the global capnography market and accounted for more than 71% of the total market share. The increasing prevalence of respiratory disorders among the pediatrics is one of the key factors that has encouraged the adoption of capnography by physicians across the region. This region witnessed approximately two-thirds of the cases of respiratory failure in children during the first postnatal year. Furthermore, the market in the Americas is dominated by vendors with stronger operational base and financial strength. Some of the vendors in the Americas like Philips Healthcare have developed advanced capnographs such as the Alaris EtCO₂ module to meet the consumer's demand in this region.

The worldwide market for Capnography is expected to grow at a CAGR of roughly xx% over the next five years, will reach xx million US$ in 2023, from xx million US$ in 2017, according to a new GIR (Global Info Research) study.
