Mechanical seals converge/connect parts of systems or mechanisms to prevent leakage of fluids. The plumbing systems in the manufacturing, aerospace, automotive, electrical and electronics, and petrochemical industries use these seals to prevent fluid leakage by maintaining the pressure flow. The plumbing mechanism employed by the industries determines the type of seals required for joining the parts.

Scope of the Report:

This report focuses on the Cartridge Seals in global market, especially in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific, South America, Middle East and Africa. This report categorizes the market based on manufacturers, regions, type and application. One trend in market is growth in nuclear power generation. In nuclear power generation, cartridge seals are used in various applications, for applications such as cooling water and condensate pump, residual heat removal pump, feed pump, end suction pump, charging pump, and other applications. Therefore, growth in nuclear power generation capacity is expected to drive the demand for cartridge seal market. The nuclear power sector is slowly gaining momentum and is set to grow globally during the forecast period. Until January 2017, the world had 447 commercial nuclear power reactors in about 31 countries. The total existing capacity is more than 391,386 MW, and another 60 nuclear reactors are under construction. The nuclear power sector generates about 11% of the world's electric power with zero CO2 emissions, making it even more popular among environmentalists.

APAC led the majority market share during 2016 and is expected to grow further in the during the forecast period. Factors like investments to increase offshore production, rising demand for water and wastewater infrastructure, and rising demand for cartridge seals in pharmaceutical industries propel the growth of the market in the region. The worldwide market for Cartridge Seals is expected to grow at a CAGR of roughly xx% over the next five years, will reach xx million US$ in 2023, from xx million US$ in 2017, according to a new GIR (Global Info Research) study.
