Abstracts

The global Cat Food and Snack market size is expected to reach $ 9708 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 6.3% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

In 2025, global production of Cat Food and Snack reached approximately 3.9 million metric tons, with an average price of around USD 1,650 per metric ton. Cat Food and Snack refers to nutritional foods specifically designed for cats, covering the full spectrum of staple foods and treats, formulated to meet the unique nutritional requirements of cats as obligate carnivores, emphasizing high animal protein, essential amino acids (particularly taurine), and palatability. Main product forms include dry food, wet food, semi-moist food, and treats. Formulations cover basic nutrition, functional formulas, grain-free recipes, and prescription diets. Target species cover kittens, adult cats, and senior cats. Products are characterized by high-quality animal protein, complete nutrition, and excellent palatability. Distribution channels cover online e-commerce platforms, offline pet specialty stores, premium supermarkets, and veterinary clinics.

The global Cat Food and Snack market is experiencing steady growth, driven primarily by continued growth in the global cat population, deepening nutritional understanding of cats as obligate carnivores, premiumization and functional consumption upgrades, and expansion of treat consumption habits as emotional connection and training tools. North America is the largest market globally, with high brand concentration and active product innovation; Europe shows steady growth with strong emphasis on natural ingredients and sustainable sourcing; Asia-Pacific is the fastest-growing region, driven by continued growth in cat populations and consumption upgrades in China, Japan, and South Korea. Industry trends are focused on high meat content and human-grade ingredients, expansion of functional formulas (urinary health, hairball control, weight management, skin and coat, etc.), rapid growth of freeze-dried treats, and sustainable eco-friendly packaging. Future continued growth in global cat populations, deepening of sophisticated cat care concepts, and high-end product innovation will collectively drive steady expansion of the Cat Food and Snack market.
