Abstracts

The global Celery Herb Oil market size is expected to reach $ 1405 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 5.4% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032). Global sales of celery herb oil reached 44,360 tons in 2025, with an average price of US$21,428 per ton.

Celery Herb Oil is a pale yellow to orange-yellow essential oil obtained from the mature seeds or above-ground parts of the annual herbaceous plant Apium graveolens L. (family Apiaceae) through steam distillation. It has a strong, persistent, and highly diffusive spicy-herbaceous aroma; its core active components include 3-n-butylphthalide, sedanolide, α -pinene, and limonene, which give it the typical 'celery seed' spicy aroma and blackcurrant undertones, while also exhibiting anti-inflammatory, antibacterial, and antioxidant biological activities.

The raw materials for celery herb oil are the dried whole plant or seeds of Apium graveolens L. of the Umbelliferae family, mainly produced in France, India, Xinjiang and Shandong in China; the seeds contain 2-3% oil, and the whole plant contains 0.05-0.3% oil. The raw material purchase price is US$12,000-16,000/ton for seeds and approximately US$8,000/ton for the whole plant. Raw material costs account for 55-60% of the ex-factory price. Processing uses steam distillation for 6-8 hours, resulting in an oil yield of 2-3% for seeds and 0.1-0.2% for the whole plant. Energy consumption, labor, and testing costs account for 25-30%, so a 10% fluctuation in raw material prices can directly translate to approximately a 6% fluctuation in essential oil prices.
