Abstracts

Cold fresh pork refers to a series of changes in muscle tissue when the slaughtered pig carcasses are placed for 16 hours to 24 hours under the strict control of 0 ° to 4 ° and 90% relative humidity. Since then, the stiffness of muscle has gradually disappeared. Due to acid excretion, protease, calcium activating enzyme and other factors, the large muscle cellulose has gradually changed to small muscle fibers and fiber sheets. At the same time, the protein produces amino acids and flavor substances under the action of enzymes, making the muscle soft, juicy, rich in meat flavor, convenient for human digestion and absorption, and become truly edible meat.
