Glass is the most dominating material in modern architecture. Moreover, glasses are designed to include many desirable properties by modifying its composition and processing.

These glasses undergo specialized chemical and mechanical treatments to increase their strength, durability, and coatings for specific applications. Coatings are deployed on glasses so as to control exposure of the glass surface to vapors, which bind to the glass forming a permanent coating. In addition, coatings on glass improves special reflection, transmission, absorption properties, scratch resistance, and corrosion resistance.
