Abstracts

The global Complete Pet Foods market size is expected to reach $ 180909 million by 2032, rising at a market growth of 5.4% CAGR during the forecast period (2026-2032).

Complete pet food refers to formulated food that can meet all the nutritional needs of dogs, cats, and other pets at specific life stages (such as puppyhood, adulthood, and senior years). The core standards are 'complete' and 'balanced'?'complete' means the product contains all the essential nutrients a pet needs; 'balanced' means the proportions of these nutrients are precise and appropriate, with no excess or deficiency.

From a nutritional stage perspective, products can be further divided into specialized formulas for puppies, adults, seniors, pregnant women, and lactating women. In recent years, high-meat-content, grain-free formulas, and functional products targeting urinary and gastrointestinal health have become mainstream in the market. Overall, complete pet food is continuously upgrading from simply 'feeding enough' to 'eating well and precisely.'

In 2025, global Complete Pet Food sale reached approximately 14,067 K MT, with an average global market price of around 8 US$/Kg. Production capacity reached 25,000 K MT, with a gross profit margin of approximately 30%.
