According to our (Global Info Research) latest study, the global Consumer Credit Service market size was valued at US$ 12580 million in 2025 and is forecast to a readjusted size of US$ 16830 million by 2032 with a CAGR of 4.3% during review period.

Consumer credit services refer to a form of credit support provided by financial institutions or consumer finance companies to consumers, allowing consumers to obtain loans through credit or mortgage when they do not have sufficient funds, to meet various needs such as daily consumption, purchase of large items, education, medical care, etc. Such services include credit cards, personal consumption loans, installment payments, car loans, etc., to help consumers achieve their consumption goals in advance and repay the loans in installments over a period of time in the future.

Consumer credit services play an important role in the modern economy. They provide consumers with flexible financial support and promote the growth of consumer demand and economic development. However, consumer credit may also bring the risk of excessive debt. If consumers lack reasonable financial planning or rely too much on credit, it may lead to financial pressure and even credit problems. Therefore, when promoting consumer credit services, financial institutions should focus on risk education to help consumers make responsible borrowing decisions. At the same time, they also need to strengthen risk control measures to ensure the healthy development of the credit market.
